

Coaching for character

“The problem is that, even at the amateur level, many coaches are hired and paid to win, not to build character.”

Money may not be worth what you think

Many people are actually poor because the only thing they have is money. Are you in it just for the money?

10 ways to raise a charitable child

Over and over, researchers are finding that empathy is the cornerstone for becoming a happy, well-adjusted, successful adult. Studies show that possessing empathy also makes children more likable, more employable, better leaders, and more conscience-driven.
